

PORTUGUESE PEOPLE PROUD OF BEAUTIFUL CITY OF LISBON

"He Who Has Not Seen Lisbon Has Missed Something Very Beautiful"

(By Henry Buckley)
LISBON.—The "Portuguese are proud," "Quem não viu Lisboa não viu uma coisa muito bonita" is the motto. He who has not seen Lisbon has missed something very beautiful.

Madrid has many excellent qualities, but the most attractive feature is that it is a town of old-fashioned beauty.

Correspondent to Madrid and just a visitor to Lisbon, I am going to take the great risk of making a mortal sin in this Iberian capital by comparing the two cities.

Lisbon view you can have of Lisbon is when arriving by sea. Dailing up the Tago you can get a view of Lisbon reminiscent of that of the sea from the Bay of Biscay.

Lisbon remains the most, clean and healthy town designed by the intelligent Marquis de Pombal after the great earthquake of 1755. Madrid is neither so clean nor orderly. Its bay is a receptacle for their refuse. 16 or 17 stories make the most "Americanized" town in Europe.

Lisbon's climate is moderate, handsome, that of Madrid is more salubrious, swinging from extremes of cold to extremes of heat.

Madrid dresses conservatively. The women make a point of wearing black. In contrast to the American style. A Madrid woman wears the black of mourning as a perfume on very few occasions.

Lisbon is a hot, it is a city of contrasts, as the Spanish call it. The shops are as numerous and as crowded with mostly male clients as in the United States.

To Abbreviate And Simplify Army Names

OTTAWA.—Harnessed officers who have been wrestling for years with the problem of correct military designations will rejoice with satisfaction that the names and abbreviations in most frequent use are officially established for the Canadian Army.

From the war, the permanent staff was known as Permanent Staff, or P.M., and the reserve staff was known as Reserve Staff, or R.M. During hostilities a bewildering variety of terms grew up, such as Canadian Active Service Force, Canadian Army (Active), and Canadian Army (Reserve).
